I am a supporter of Public Schools to remove all Wi-Fi. It is unsafe for our health. I feel more tired and have headache around Wi-Fi. I always feel better when I leave the Public School buildings. It is alarming. I feel that it permeates my entire body and brain and interfere with how productive or fast I can think. I feel foggy in school classrooms.

Even if we remove the Wi-Fi, the schools will still be high-tech and convenient, just via cables instead! There are a whole lot of cables running through the classrooms anyways, what's one more for internet? It will be healthier for all. We have our children in schools, their young brains are growing and accepting everything from the environment that may or may not impact their health 10-20 years down the road, then why take that risks at all? Especially since there are studies about it already!

If the schools are here to protect and help promote a safe and healthy learning environment for the children, I am hoping they will heed the obvious warnings from these researches.

Sincerely,
